Since the DELF exam changed, students who do the DELF preparation are mixed with other students.

Since the beginning of 2008 all of our courses evolved in order to adapt as closely as possible to the concept developed by the CECR (Commune European Framework of Reference).

They encourage a dynamic and interactive teaching method (pédagogie active) which places students in practical situations where they have to communicate and exchange for a genuine overall progression in all skills.

The DELF course embraces that approach which prevails throughout all of our programs so that it may comply with the CECR recommendations. It only slightly stands out as it proposes more regular training to the DELF various examinations. However, students in the DELF program are regularly assessed by their teachers who tutor them individually.

They are evaluated through blank tests or extra assignments/homework in order to get intensive training for each part of the test in the DELF. Lastly, they will be offered the help they need with all the issues regarding the exams.

THE DELF: An official diploma

The "Diplôme d'Études en Langue Française" is awarded by the French Ministry of Education, in accordance with the "Common European framework of reference" for EU languages.

The DELF is recognized and accepted for entry into French universities and France's most prestigious schools.

The DELF is considered as the necessary and essential benchmark examination which is official proof of one's French level.

4 & 6 weeks: DELF 30
30 lessons/week x 45min/lesson.

8, 12 & 16 weeks: DELF 20 or 30
20 or 30 lessons/week x 45min/lesson.
